WITH OR WITHOUT LEVELS, assessment in Geography and History is often identified as a point for further professional development need amongst teachers.

This course will look at what it means to make progress in Primary Geography and History, exploring models of progression and expectation frameworks. It will demonstrate how these relate to the National Curriculum programmes of study and can help to develop a framework for planning.

The range of purposes for assessment will be established and opportunities to assess at different timescales identified. Participants will review assessment practices and are invited to bring examples of current practice from within school to share with others.
